FOREWORD

The Alberta Social Resources Inventory is a computerized system providing a coordinated approach to the collection and dissemination of printed information on human services on a province-wide basis in Alberta.

This directory is designed as a helpful guide to the social service organizations in the Edmonton Region for use by community professionals. Counsellors, physicans, librarians, nurses, clergy, social planners, teachers and many others should find this a handy reference to be used frequently.

New information on services is added to the Inventory's system on an ongoing basis. The information in this directory has been recently updated through a mail and telephone survey of the organizations listed.

Inevitably, there will be omissions. Please help us make the directory more useful by identifying any errors or omissions on the convenient Feedback form at the end of the directory. Ideas regarding format are also welcome.

The inclusion of any organization in this directory does not necessarily constitute endorsement of the purpose, method, or quality of its work.

ARRANGEMENT OF DIRECTORY

Social Resources Inventory publications provide users with an easy-to-use reference to programs and services. The information in this directory is divided into three sections:

1. WHITE PAGES. In the Agency Profiles section, descriptions of agencies appear alphabetically by geographical area. In most cases, the entry gives the formal name of the organization, address, telephone number(s), the person(s) in charge, hours, area served, purpose and services provided. It may also indicate the sponsoring organization, mailing address, fees, clientele served, access to service, sources of referral, documents required, branch information, and itinerant services. The date that the information was updated appears on the last line of each organization's description. By checking this date, the currency of information can be verified. The description reflects what each organization has submitted with some editing for the sake of consistency.

Common-names of agencies appear with appropriate SEE references to the entry numbers and formal names of the agencies.

A local organization has been identified in each section as a resource for further information on the area. As well, a list of Other Information Sources in Alberta appears after the Yellow Pages.

2. PINK PAGES. The names of organizations appear alphabetically along with entry numbers.
3. YELLOW PAGES. A subject index has been prepared with subjects listed alphabetically. SEE references direct the user to the major category in the index where the item will appear as a sub-category along with a complete list of agencies providing the service, their locations and entry numbers. As there is frequently a relationship with other types of services, SEE ALSO references are listed to direct the user to these services.

Services: COMMUNITY-BASED SOCIAL SERVICES

•(available from all Social Service Centres)

Counselling

•provides preventive counselling by a professionally qualified staff on a local basis to citizens of Edmonton. Information, referral, advocacy, and counselling are offered to meet specific needs of individuals and families.

Social Work with Groups

•provides an opportunity for sharing and learning with others where needs in common make such service feasible and efficient. Information and support groups are developed according to expressed need dealing with diverse topics and offered to a wide range of clientele.

Community Social Work

•offers support and consultation to encourage citizen participation in issues of local concern. Service includes information on community needs and resources as well as organizational assistance to local groups, agencies, and boards.

Home Support Services

•provides home cleaning, yardwork, and minor home repairs, with service priority to seniors without financial, family, or community resources, enabling them to remain independent in their own homes. Counselling services are available from social workers for senior citizens and their families.

Family Aide Service

•provides teaching homemakers who work in the client's home and offer information and practical assistance with child care, parenting, nutrition, food preparation, budgeting, and household management.

Juvenile Probation Service

•provides services to youths and their families including preparation for juvenile court hearings and probation supervision to those adjudged delinquent. Preventive social services are made available to youths warned by police for an offence as well as to families and siblings.

SOCIAL PLANNING BRANCH

•(Bevis Peters, Acting Director) •researches social needs and problems, prepares plans and strategies to address unmet social needs with an aim to improving the social environment and quality of life for residents of Edmonton. •collects, updates, and disseminates social service and social-demographic information, consults and provides technical assistance to voluntary agencies and other groups with social research and community surveys. •evaluates anticipated social consequences of proposed land use plans and reports to decision making bodies to minimize or prevent negative social impacts. •assists with department administration and FCSS consultation. •provides staff support to Council-appointed committees.

Family and Community Support Services

•operates a federally-provincially-municipally cost-shared program which provides funding, consultation, and other assistance to nonprofit volunteer-operated community agencies offering social services of a preventive nature. Applications for funding by organizations meeting established criteria may be submitted to any social service centre for individual consideration, subject to availability of funds.

Volunteer Services

•provides opportunities for citizen involvement to enrich and supplement the department's programs while providing interesting, varied, and useful experience for volunteers. Screening, orientation, training, and supervision is provided to all volunteers by skilled, experienced staff. Involvement of interested volunteers is encouraged in all department service areas.

Charitable Appeals Committee

•reviews and approves or denies applications from organizations wishing to conduct public solicitations for charitable purposes. The department accepts applications and provides administrative support.

Grants-in-Aid Subcommittee

•(Social Services Advisory Committee) •reviews funding applications from social service organizations not in receipt of other civic funds. Grants are reviewed annually, are limited in amount and are not intended as continuing funding. The department accepts applications and provides administrative support. Recommendations are forwarded to City Council.

Social Services Advisory Committee

•provides guidance and assistance to the department, relating to Family and Community Support Services programs. •reviews funding applications and makes recommendations on support within available funding, studies social needs and service gaps, and provides community input to service planning and coordination. •invites citizen representation regarding social service needs and social issues in Edmonton.

CHILDREN'S SERVICES

•(Garry Crusch, Administrator) •purchases services from approved, nonprofit, community board-operated day care centres and out-of-school care centres, on behalf of children whose family cannot afford the full cost of the service. •provides consultative and educational leadership to day care centres, out-of-school care centres and groups interested in these programs, as well as family day care.
